

Finding your voice: Advocating for arts education as a teacher leader

Saturday, October 4, 2008

7:30 a.m. – 5:00 p.m.

Mesa Arts Center

How do you make arts education a priority for today's decision makers burdened with economic and accountability pressures? Join us for a day long conference that will provide a variety of tools and ideas to answer this question.

- Find the advocacy voice that is the right fit for you, and try out successful models from colleagues around the state.
- Learn the secrets of keynoter Richard Burrows, who is building Los Angeles Unified School District's arts budget from $5 million to $43 million.
- Meet with AZ Residency Roster Artists and Arts Organizations who can help you with your advocacy plan and create arts learning experiences with your students. In partnership with the AZ Commission on the Arts and Phoenix Office of Arts and Culture.
- Interact with Arizona education decision makers, including legislators, school board members, and Superintendent of Public Instruction, Tom Horne.

Conference Registration

NEW! A group discount is available for groups of two or more individuals from the same school or district. Register as a group and support each other as arts advocates back in your community. Group registration price per person: $80. Individual registration fee: $90.

Group registration link:

<http://www.ade.az.gov/onlineregistration/EventLocationSelection.asp?EventID=1692>

Individual registration link:

<http://www.ade.az.gov/onlineregistration/EventLocationSelection.asp?EventID=1715>

Registration cost is inclusive of breakfast, lunch, and materials

Arizona Department of Education
Tom Horne
Superintendent of Public Instruction

For more information

Visit www.azed.gov/asd/arts
Contact Lynn Tuttle at 602-364-1534

